Kharkuto is a non-governmental and non-profit organization. It is a group of young student volunteers who want to do something for the society. This new born organization does not have popularity, strong financial base and even sufficient numbers of helping hands. But the volunteers like not only to dream but also to work those out in real. Hence in spites of all those imperfections and negations they set up the organization and think it to be the first step to bring the utopia.

The aim and object of this self financed organization is primarily to help poor students of the concerned locality [Nandigram] by teaching and giving books and necessary study aids. As all the associates are students so an education oriented project has been chosen at first. Kharkuto promises to work for the people of all classes of a larger area later on.

When they were +2 level students the Kharkuto members formed an organization named Chhatro Yuva Unnayan Porishad and helped many of their classmates and juniors. More than 700 books had been distributed among the poor students by them. By their earnest request many of the famous local kindhearted private tutors took a large number of poor students in their coaching centers and taught them free of cost.
